

Celebrating Collegiate Women in Golf
The 23rd National Women's Collegiate Golf Championship
April 10 – 12, 2017

The 23rd National Women's Collegiate Golf Championship (WCGC) will kick off Monday, April 10, 2017 at Whitewater Creek Country Club in Fayetteville, Georgia. The Women in Golf Foundation, Inc. (WIGF) is extremely pleased to host this exciting competition again. The 3-day event will showcase awesome talent from some of America's top Universities' women's golf programs as they compete for the "Renee Powell Cup".

"The WIGF is honored to continue its celebration of collegiate women golfers" stated LaJean Gould, founder and president of the foundation. "Created in 1994, to support Historically Black Colleges and Universities, this event continues its mission to enhance the lives of females in collegiate golf programs by providing opportunities that enhance their skills, career awareness and ability to succeed. Now serving a diverse culture of young women, the program has evolved into a national season ending competitive experience that exposes them to networking opportunities, personal development and life skill enhancements, unmatched. There is no other program of this magnitude for young women of all colors".
